Nodenage foundtype unknown

Stop Clocks for Desiccators

Sku: GE6160

www.geomatrixlabs.com

Description

A stop clock, commonly called a stopwatch, is a lab instrument used to precisely measure time intervals. It is some stop clocks might also have extra characteristics, such the capacity to record several time intervals or In scientific studies and other situations requiring exact timing, such as in manufacturing, cooking, and atheresis and other situations required exact timing, such as in manufacturing, cooking, and atheresis and other situations required exact timing, such as in manufacturing, cooking, and atheresis and other situations required exact timing, such as in manufacturing, cooking, and atheresis are such as the contraction of the contract