

No image found for type unknown

Stop Clocks for Desiccators

Sku : GE6160

www.geomatrixlabs.com

Description

A stop clock, commonly called a stopwatch, is a lab instrument used to precisely measure time intervals. It is used in various applications, including scientific research, manufacturing, and sports. Some stop clocks might also have extra characteristics, such as the capacity to record several time intervals or to be used as a timer. In scientific studies and other situations requiring exact timing, such as in manufacturing, cooking, and athletics.